Saturday, April 14 from 10-5

[ROSWELL] Go Native with us this year! The Chattahoochee Nature Center presents the Spring Native Plant Sale; a garden of delights and horticultural adventures is waiting for you! Stop by the Earth Day Kids Fest and meet Captain Planet too, for a full day of family fun on Saturday, April 14th from 10-3. (See additional release information). Lisa Cole, CNC Horticulturalist says, "I invite you to look at the gardens and spaces that surround your home. Every native plant that you bring into these spaces not only affects your property, but the larger surrounding area of your neighborhood, community and the local watershed....One garden CAN make a difference, and like ripples in a pond, create and nurture a greater planet for us all." See our website for details at www.chattnaturecenter.org.

Are you hungry to plant some unique vegetable plants and herbs to cook with? Do you envision your garden space full of bright prolific blooms, with butterflies, hummingbirds, and other pollinators filling the skies? Butterfly enthusiasts will want to add our unique Milkweeds, Sages, Blazing Stars, to create wildlife beautiful friendly habitats to their environs! Other host and nectar plants to attract pollinators will include Hibiscus, Salvias, Asters, Fennel, Bee balm and Joe Pye weed.

Don't know how to design a border garden full of interesting textures and colors? Let our plant experts help you create the garden of your dreams! Bring a picture of your yard and we will assist you in picking excellent choices for all conditions, from full sun to full shade! Many of our plants have been propagated from our very own gardens here at the Nature Center, and are reliable year after year for their luscious foliage and beautiful flowers. We'll also have a wide selection of vegetables for your kitchen garden, and you can come visit our Unity Garden to see what is possible. Go Native! You'll find blooming trees and shrubs, native azaleas, early bloomers like Geranium, Columbine, Beardtongue and Irises. Shade-Loving Groundcovers such as Foam flower, Phloxes, Ferns and Alumroot will be available for collectors. Come see what we have in store for your gardens at the Native Plant Sale at the Chattahoochee Nature Center this April! We look forward to helping you help your garden grow!
